1 Persuasion, Attitudes, and Actions

1

The Concept of Persuasion 2

About Definitions: Fuzzy Edges and Paradigm Cases 2

Five Common Features of Paradigm Cases of Persuasion 2

A Definition After All? 4

The Concept of Attitude 4

Attitude Measurement Techniques 5

Explicit Measures 5

Semantic Differential Evaluative Scales 5

Single-Item Attitude Measures 6

Features of Explicit Measures 6

Quasi-Explicit Measures 7

Implicit Measures 8

Summary 9

Attitudes and Behaviors 9

The General Relationship 9

Moderating Factors 10

Correspondence of Measures 10

Direct Experience 11

Summary 12

Encouraging Attitude-Consistent Behavior 12

Enhance Perceived Relevance 12

Induce Feelings of Hypocrisy 13

Encourage Anticipation of Feelings 13

Summary 14

Assessing Persuasive Effects 14

3 Functional Approaches to Attitude

A Classic Functional Analysis 35

Subsequent Developments 37

- Identifying General Functions of Attitude 37
- Assessing the Function of a Given Attitude 38
- Influences on Attitude Function 40
 - Individual Differences* 40
 - Attitude Object* 40
 - Situational Variations* 41
 - Multifunctional Attitude Objects Revisited* 41
- Adapting Persuasive Messages to Recipients: Function Matching 41
 - The Persuasive Effects of Matched and Mismatched Appeals* 42
 - Explaining the Effects of Function Matching* 43

Commentary 44

- Generality and Specificity in Attitude Function Typologies 44
- Functional Confusions 45
 - Some Functional Distinctions* 45
 - Conflating the Functions* 46
- Reconsidering the Assessment and Conceptualization of Attitude Function 46
 - Assessment of Attitude Function Reconsidered* 46
